reveals a possible military logistical support facility at 54-50N 20-28E, in a wooded area approximately 8 nautical miles north of Kaliningrad, USSR (Figure 1). The facility is served by a rail spur that branches west from the Zelenogradsk-Kaliningrad rail line. A road extending west from the facility connects with existing roads in a military training area.

25X1D The facility is in a five-sided, double-fenced area of approximately 70 acres (Figures 2 and 3). The area contains eight possible buildings under construction (visible only on the [REDACTED] photography) served by a secondary road. Another secondary road inside the fenced area forms a semicircle.

A diamond-shaped scarred area just east of the fenced area is probably a borrow pit from which fill was removed to construct the bed for the rail spur serving the facility. A probable administration/support area for the facility, south of the probable borrow pit, is connected by road to the rail spur. This area contains two rectangular buildings, 180 by 55 feet and 135 by 65 feet. A third possible building is located here also.
